Section Summary

RECONSTRUCTION GOVERNMENTS

After the Civil War, some northern Republicans moved to the South. They were not trusted by southerners who thought the Republicans had come to profit from Reconstruction. African Americans used their new right to vote to elect more than 600 African Americans, including the first black senator, Hiram Revels. Together they worked to rebuild the war-damaged South.

KU KLUX KLAN

Many southerners opposed Reconstruction. In 1866 a group of them created the secret and violent Ku Klux Klan. Its targets were African Americans, Republicans, and public officials. The Klan spread throughout the South until the federal government stepped in and passed laws that made Klan activities illegal. Violence, however, continued.

RECONSTRUCTION ENDS

The General Amnesty Act of 1872 allowed most former Confederates to serve in public office. Soon many Democratic ex-Confederates were elected. Republicans also lost power as a consequence of Grant's problem-plagued presidency and the Panic of 1873. In 1876 the Hayes-Tilden presidential race was so close it took the Compromise of 1877 to make sure Democrats would accept Hayes's election.

Southern Democrats, called Redeemers, worked to limit African American rights. The methods they used included poll taxes, legal segregation, and Jim Crow laws. They even got help from the Supreme Court, which ruled in Plessy v. Ferguson that segregation was legal.

African Americans found their rights restricted in other ways, too. Most African Americans could not afford to buy land, so many began sharecropping, or sharing the crop with landowners. Often only the landowner profited, while sharecroppers lived in debt.

REBUILDING SOUTHERN INDUSTRY

The South's economy depended on cotton profits, which went up and down. In the "New South" movement, southern leaders turned to industry to strengthen the economy. Mills and factories were built. The new industries thrived and helped the southern economy grow stronger.

Why did southern Republicans lose power during the 1870s?
